American Methodists and Women's Rights

ASHLEY BOGGAN DREFF

2020 marks the 100th anniversary of the 19th Amendment.
While some things have changed, others haven't.

This book tells the story of American Methodist women's fight for women's rights, beginning with the Women's Christian Temperance Union and ending with the #MeToo movement. Each chapter documents particular Methodist women and provides the reader with a basic historic context of the time or situation at hand as it shows how Methodist women engaged and fought for women's equality or women's rights in American society and American Methodism.

The faith of these Methodist women emboldened them to reach beyond their social confines to find political avenues of social justice. As women engaged in mission, they sought not to fix social ills but prevent them from happening again. They addressed the causes of oppression; and by stepping out of their place, they made a place for others.

"Dr. Ashley Boggan Dreff has done an outstanding job capturing the stories of the female saints of the past on whose shoulders women leaders in the Methodist movement stand. From Frances Willard, to Anna Howard Shaw, to Mrs. Dorothy Tilly and many more, we are reminded of the struggles and disruptions many women faced in order for women to stand and lead today. As one who helps lead at Global Ministries, I am proud to carry on the legacy of so many women who fought for justice, freedom, and equality for all throughout the world.

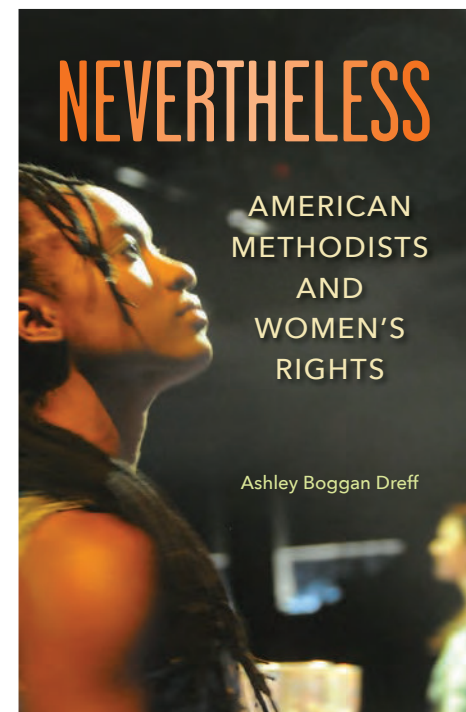

Thank you for sharing this wisdom 'for such a time as this.'"

—Amy Valdez Barker, Executive Director of Global Mission Connections at the General Board of Global Ministries of The United Methodist Church

"Nevertheless: American Methodists and Women's Rights accomplishes the rare feat of time-travel by effortlessly weaving together the past, present, and future of Methodist women's action for social holiness. Five systemic issues—voting rights, racial equity, gender equality, abortion access, and sexual harassment—have galvanized the energy, passion, persistence, and faith of Methodist women in their pursuit of an equitable society. While much has been accomplished, much still remains. In that regard, Dreff's work is both timely and sorely needed."

—Priscilla Pope-Levison, Associate Dean for External Programs and Professor of Ministerial Studies, Perkins School of Theology, Southern Methodist University

Ashley Boggan Dreff, PhD, is Director of Women and Gender Studies, Assistant Professor of Religion, High Point University, High Point, North Carolina. She is author of Entangled: A History of American Methodism, Politics, and Sexuality, winner of the 2019 Saddlebag Award.

Find Your Place in God's Mission

JEREMIAH GIBBS

A step-by-step guide for hearing and claiming God's calling for your life.

The purpose of Find Your Place in God's Mission is to help students find clarity about how God has uniquely gifted them to participate in God's ongoing mission for the sake of the world. This book provides a structure and step-by-step guide for discerning God's calling and corrects some misconceptions. Gibbs provides guidance and helps organize discernment into three intersecting categories: needs of the world, passions, and tools. This book is for students, youth and young adult pastors, counselors, chaplains, and campus ministers.

The Christian walk leads us to move ever closer to God and take steps to deepen our calling to be faithful. But the urgency of that pursuit is especially poignant for teens and college students. They often feel pressured, believing that if they don't get this choice right, they may find themselves outside of God's will and be destined for less than God intends. This practical and accessible book will help them find their way and discern their path.

"God is always calling persons to ministry in ways that allow for personal authenticity and vocational passion. Thank you, Dr. Jeremiah Gibbs, for speaking encouragement into the lives of students for such a time as this. This book is a helpful resource and literary gift offered at the right time."

—Bishop Julius C. Trimble, Indiana United Methodist Conference, The United Methodist Church

"The two existential questions of life are 'Who am I?' and 'Why am I here?' These are two fundamentally spiritual questions as well. I am grateful to Jeremiah Gibbs for offering a transformative way to wrestle with these questions as we strive to make sense of our passions, the world's needs, and the tools we have to embrace and live out our vocation—God's call on our lives. This is a must read!"

—Reginald Blount, Assistant Professor of Formation, Youth, and Culture, Garrett-Evangelical Theological Seminary

"Packed with practical steps, real-life stories, and tools for learning, Find Your Place in God's Mission is a fantastic resource for all seeking to explore vocation and calling. As a local church pastor, I plan to share the book with our high school students, mentors, church leadership, and anyone in the process of vocational and/or missional discernment. Jeremiah has a huge heart for helping students and guiding them in finding God's vision and mission for their life, and I'm excited to have this resource."

—Brian Durand, Pastor, Clay United Methodist Church, South Bend, Indiana

Jeremiah Gibbs, PhD, is University Chaplain and Director of the Lantz Center for Christian Vocation and Formation, Assistant Professor of Philosophy and Religion at University of Indianapolis, and an elder in The United Methodist Church. Gibbs was awarded the 2015 Francis Asbury Award for outstanding leadership and excellence in higher education ministries by the United Methodist General Board of Higher Education and Ministries. In addition, he has published academic works on Pentecostalism, liturgy, apologetics, and bioethics for journals and periodicals.

Methodist Christology: From the Wesleys to the Twenty-First Century

JASON E. VICKERS AND JEROME VAN KUIKEN, GENERAL EDITORS

Maps the path of pan-Wesleyan Christologies

An international group of pan-Wesleyan scholars address this question posed by Jaroslav Pelikan: What happened to Methodist Christology after Wesley? Vickers's work on Methodist Christology in The Oxford Handbook of Methodist Studies sketched a preliminary answer. This book fills it out. The book is in two parts. Part one is a robust study of Methodist Christology from the Wesleys onward. Moving beyond the historical survey, part two aims to set trajectories for the future of pan-Wesleyan Christology.

John Deschner's monograph Wesley's Christology (1960) blazed a trail for subsequent smaller-scale treatments of John Wesley's doctrine of Christ, such as chapters in Randy Maddox's Responsible Grace (1994) and Ken Collins's Theology of John Wesley (2007). This book reopens a line of interpretation that is ripe for reconsideration.

Imagining Equity

The Gifts of Christian Feminist Theology

KAREN STRAND WINSLOW

Imagine the possibilities of a nonsexist Church that advocates justice for all.

Christian feminist theology challenges traditional theology and church practices that have restricted half of God's people from serving God and the church as priests, pastors, teachers, and baptizers. This book offers a constructive argument and biblical examples to suggest a dynamic adaptation and revision of customs in narratives, prophecy, and wisdom, including especially the incarnation and in Jesus's life and teaching. After carefully defining "feminism" and examining the biblical text, the author emphasizes that outsiders and Othered peoples are represented in the Bible as loved and used by God, even though the privileged have actively discriminated against them and continue to do so both in and out of ecclesial structure.

Christian feminists seek to find, listen, and raise the voices of women and others' experiences through diverse means, in order to contribute to the spread of the gospel, redemption, and justice for all.

Karen Strand Winslow, a noted Old Testament scholar, is Professor of Biblical Studies, Chair of Biblical and Theological Studies, and Director of the Masters of Arts in Theological Studies at Azusa Pacific Seminary, Azusa Pacific University. She is also an ordained elder of Free Methodist Church, Southern California Conference.

The Four Gospels

An Introduction for Teaching and Preaching

J. SAMUEL SUBRAMANIAN

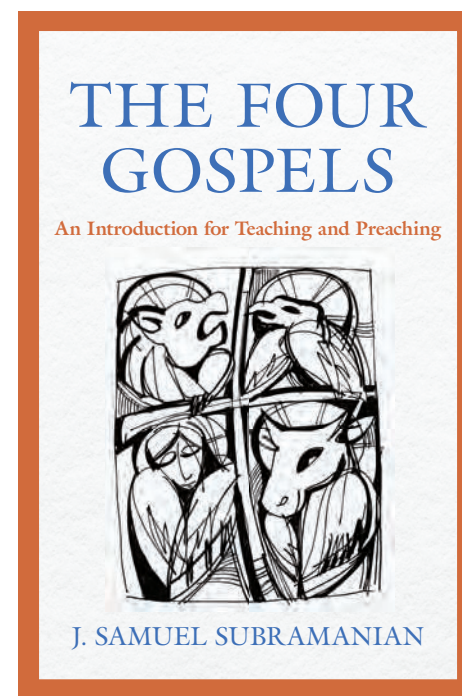

To have a complete understanding of Jesus, a clear understanding of all four Gospels is essential.

Jesus of Nazareth is the object of Christian faith, hope, and worship and the subject of teaching and preaching in churches throughout the world. In The Four Gospels: An Introduction for Teaching and Preaching, J. Samuel Subramanian lays a firm foundation as he addresses the context, authorship, and basics of each Gospel. Using John Wesley's notes on each gospel text, this thorough yet accessible introduction also demonstrates how each gospel writer exemplifies the whole scope and tenor of scripture.

In this book the author provides a solid foundation for the study of the Gospels; offers insights from the writings on each gospel by John Wesley; and shows readers how to preach and teach from each gospel. As a result readers will have a clear understanding of the biblical content; learn the distinctives of a Wesleyan approach to the Gospels; and be better able to guide congregations to help them become more biblically literate.

J. Samuel Subramanian, PhD, is Associate Professor of New Testament Theology at United Theological Seminary of the Twin Cities. Author of many articles, his books include The Synoptic Gospels and the Psalms as Prophecy (London: T & T Clark, 2007). He is an elder in The United Methodist Church.

Mothers in Israel

Methodist Beginnings through the Eyes of Women

DONNA L. FOWLER-MARCHANT

The stories of early Methodist women leaders

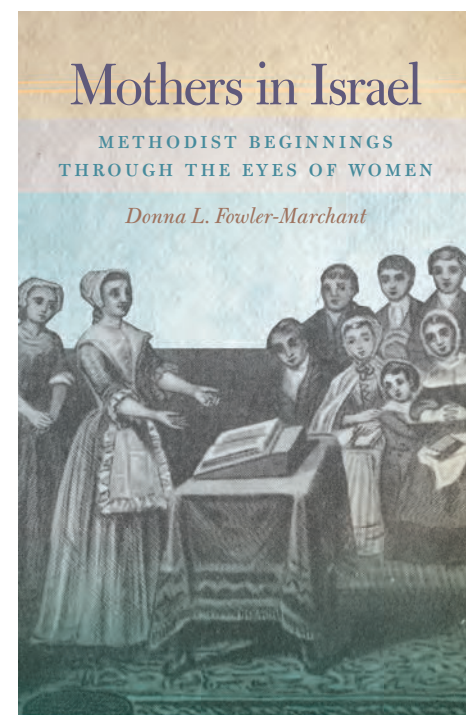

Women's stories have often been consigned to the footnotes of history, making it necessary to read them into the narrative based on scanty clues and tantalizing breadcrumbs that sometimes raise more questions than answers. Conversely, when a written record does exist, it has often been suppressed and/or repackaged, downplaying women's contributions. Yet in their own time, and due to their leadership and exemplary courage, these women were called "Mothers in Israel"—a designation that hearkens back to the biblical Deborah. And Wesley used the language of home and family to represent his ideal vision for a community of believers.

What compelled these strong, intelligent, pious women to stand fast in the face of obstacles? How did their faith give them a firm foundation on which to stand? And what were the reactions and roles of the significant men in their lives in either encouraging or impeding them in their ministries? Exploring their stories reveals a legacy of shared spiritual qualities that can still stir and inspire us.

"Donna Fowler-Marchant's study of early Methodist 'Mothers in Israel' will carry you beyond compensatory history. Her explorations—based on the careful research of scholars over the past several decades—provide a more fully textured portrait of two women in particular: Susanna Wesley and Mary Bosanquet Fletcher. Rather than simply unearthing facts about early Methodist women, Fowler-Marchant affords an opportunity for you to actually learn from them. This rich resource helps you live into their spiritual legacy."

—Dr. Paul Chilcote, United Methodist theologian and historian

Donna L. Fowler-Marchant, DMin, serves three Methodist churches just outside London, England. A popular speaker and an elder in the North Carolina Annual Conference, she has also served as Minister of Pastoral Care at First Presbyterian Church in Fayetteville, North Carolina.

BRENDA K. BUCKWELL

Let God open your church to its God-sized potential.

Set your church free to follow the Spirit of God and become more life-giving through a deeper experience of the living presence of Christ. Taking cues from the extraordinary life cycle of the Monarch butterfly, the practices in this easy-to-implement book are for all who seek new ways for opening God-sized potential of faith, leadership, and being in community together through the art and practice of spiritual direction.

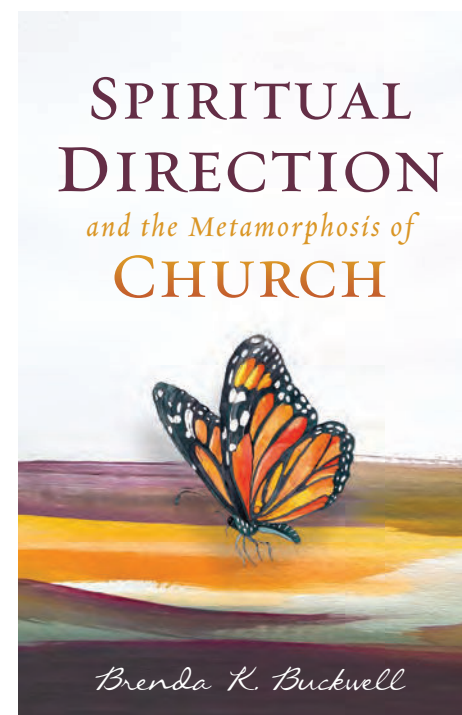

From the most learned to seekers and students of faith looking for authentic community, this book will provide a pathway of discovery through the metamorphosis process of spiritual formation. The beloved community of church can be formed in new ways through spiritual direction training. This book provides inward and outward shaping resources for transforming leaders and congregations so that they may discover, claim, and flourish in ministry.

“In this richly textured book, Brenda Buckwell identifies historic practices of spiritual direction and weaves them thoughtfully into the fabric of the Christian community. She employs the metaphor of the butterfly’s transformation—moving from egg to chrysalis to beautiful flight—as a developmental vision of a loving and grace-filled life with God. Buckwell provides a practical and profoundly relevant guide to spiritual development that enables the church to soar.”

—Dr. Paul W. Chilcote, United Methodist theologian and historian

Buckwell is a thoughtful innovator who increases leadership excellence and deepens awareness of God through preaching, spiritual direction, coaching, retreat leadership, and education. # Contextual Theology

Intersectionality of Gender, Race, and Class

HiRho Y. Park, PhD, and Cynthia A. Bond Hopson, PhD, General Editors

Prophetic voices of African and Asian women theologians

Living out one's faith is neither abstract nor hypothetical. It is concrete, visceral, and embodied in the everyday experiences and relationships that determine who we are and what we do. This book offers the insights from African and Asian women scholars, many of whom are the first (or only) woman to write on such matters from their context. These women are breaking ground and have much to share about what it means to be a woman and a Christian in overtly and covertly patriarchal societies. Essays include discussions about gender disparities and literary representations of indigenous peoples and the social, political, and religious milieu of women, specifically related to war, violence, and food insecurity.

Outside Looking In

Early Methodism as Viewed
by Its Critics

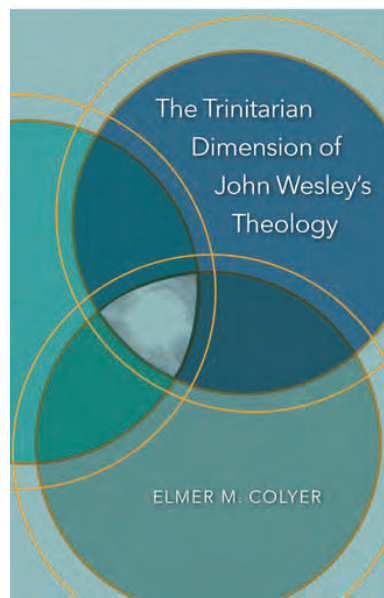

DONALD HENRY KIRKHAM

Early Methodism as seen by its adversaries and detractors

This book examines eighteenth-century pamphlet attacks on early Methodism that came from all sides—the episcopacy, clergy, other Christian groups, universities, Wesley’s ex-preachers, ex-Methodist laity, the Calvinist branch of Methodism, and the secular community. This work also references more than six hundred pamphlets and books published in Great Britain between 1739 and 1800 by opponents of the evangelical revival. Kirkham presents a more nuanced view of the emergence of Methodism. His conviction is that a reappraisal of works antagonistic to the movement and its principals offers a fresh perspective and needed corrective to the legend of Wesley and his admirers and biographers.

Donald Kirkham, PhD, is a retired United Methodist elder and former Associate Professor (Adj.) of United Methodist Studies, Yale University Divinity School. A popular lecturer and speaker, he is also a Dempster Fellow.

The Trinitarian Dimension of John Wesley's Theology

ELMER M. COLYER

Wesley’s understanding of the Trinity is essential for Methodists.

Beginning with the Trinitarian debates that raged from the early seventeenth through the eighteenth century, this book documents how important the participatory economic Trinitarian dimension is for understanding Wesley’s theology. The author shows how Wesley’s Trinitarian vision of Christianity is dramatically different and how it affects Wesley’s ecclesiology and soteriology.

Exploring a Wesleyan Political Theology

RYAN NICHOLAS DANKER,
GENERAL EDITOR

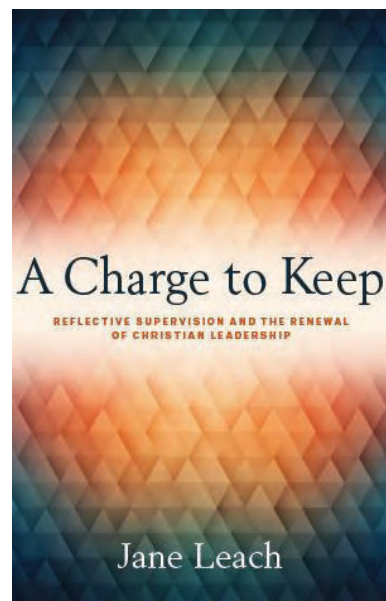

Transformation carries political consequences.

Even in his own day, there were social repercussions to Wesley's theology of transformational grace. The revivalistic nature of early Methodism included both an emphasis on individual salvation and corporate salvation, with emphasis on the individual often overshadowing the corporate in many local church settings. However, at its core, Methodism was constituted by communities shaped by the radical call to new birth and was seen from the beginning as potentially subversive, having a political edge whether the early Methodists intended it to or not.

This book helps Wesleyans begin to both discuss and address political issues without the partisanship and tribalism that marks our discourse. The balance inherent within Methodism is too easily lost without a grounding in scripture, tradition, reason, and the experience of salvation.

A Charge to Keep

Reflective Supervision and the Renewal of Christian Leadership

JANE LEACH

Supervision: a gift of grace

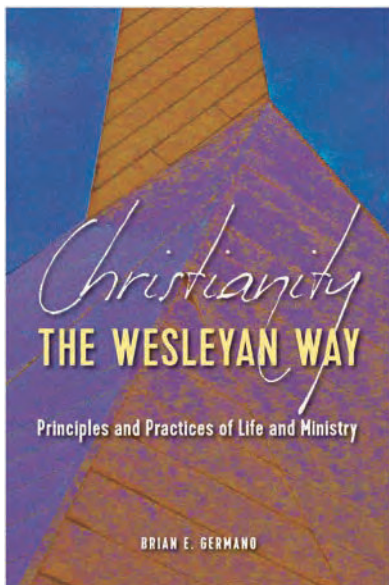

This book explores pastoral supervision in the context of leadership development and equips readers with practical tools with which to create and implement policies that will help ministers become better, more effective grace-filled leaders. The book is informed by qualitative research using the introduction of structured supervision into the life of the Methodist Church in Great Britain as a case study. The author then brings this research into dialogue with her pastoral experience as both a supervisee and supervisor in order to integrate supervision, together with its methods and Wesleyan theology, into the total life of the Church.

Jane Leach is Principal of Wesley House, Cambridge, and Fellow-Commoner of Jesus College, Cambridge. She is also a Methodist Presbyterian, theological educator, pastoral supervisor, and trainer. Leach is currently leading a national training program in Great Britain designed to equip all Methodist District Chairs and Superintendents to offer pastoral supervision.

Christianity the Wesleyan Way

Principles and Practices of Life and Ministry

BRIAN E. GERMANO

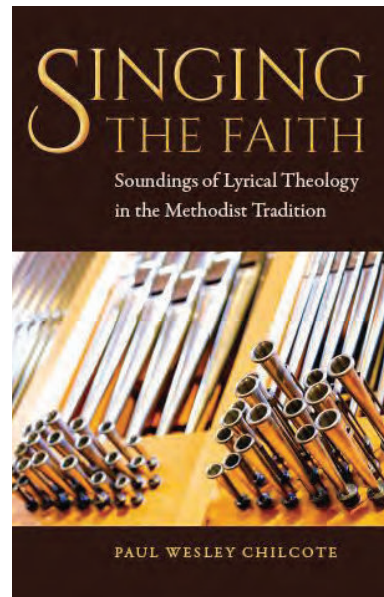

An overview of the life and theology of John Wesley and the distinctives of Methodism with application for ministry

What does it mean to be and live as a Methodist? What is unique about a Wesleyan way of believing and practicing Christianity? And what can the life and ministry of John Wesley teach us about living a faithful Christian life?

Using selected primary source material, interpretive discussion, and instructive diagrams, Germano walks readers through the heart of the history, theology, and practices of the ministry of John Wesley and the early Methodists. He then suggests some practical implications for how this faith can be lived out in our world and undergird church ministry. The author summarizes the spiritual, historical, and sociological context of Wesley's England, in order to help readers understand the primary themes of Wesleyan theology and practice. End-of-chapter discussion questions and at-a-glance boxes make the content easy to comprehend while at the same time introducing and highlighting core concepts.

Singing the Faith

Soundings of Lyrical Theology in the Methodist Tradition

PAUL WESLEY CHILCOTE

Methodists embody and experience their theology through singing the faith.

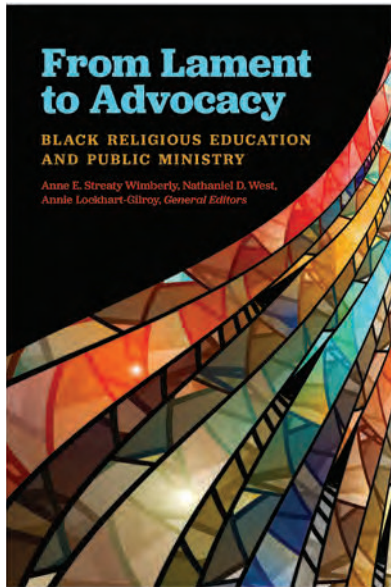

This book explores the role of sacred song in the development of the Methodist doctrinal heritage from the hymnody of the Wesleys to the sung theology of contemporary global Methodists. It shows primary axial themes of Methodist hymn writers who created a substantial corpus of lyrical material and offers a historical approach, which includes global voices.

This volume also expands recent pioneering work in the subdiscipline of "lyrical theology" by exploring the role of sacred song in the development of the Methodist doctrinal heritage. Topics include the gospel hymn tradition of Fanny Crosby and her other Methodist contemporaries; Charles A. Tindley and the black music heritage; as well as the more contemporary expressions of sung theology in the work of Fred Pratt Green, Natalie Allyn Sleeth, and Dan Damon.

Paul Wesley Chilcote is a retired professor of historical theology and Wesleyan studies and United Methodist minister. He has taught in seminaries on three continents, including Africa University in Zimbabwe and Wesley College in England.

Joy

A Guide for Youth Ministry

DAVID F. WHITE AND SARAH F. FARMER, GENERAL EDITORS

FOREWORD BY MIROSLAV VOLF

Embrace God's joy and restore a focus on Christian practices and the virtues they instill.

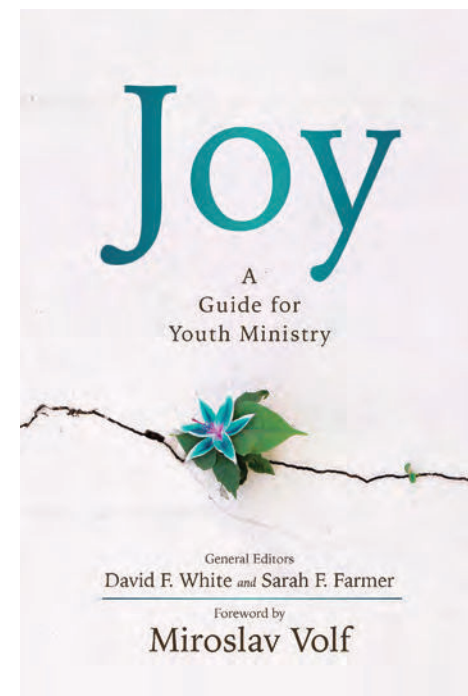

Published in cooperation with Yale University and taking cues from theologians such as Miroslav Volf and recent reflections on joy as the crown of the good life, this ecumenical group of contributors insists that reclaiming joy for youth ministry is crucial in light of modern secularism, which has eviscerated the world of such things as mystery, wonder, grace, and transcendence. The modern world urges us to work and consume compulsively; to value its creatures only for their use or to serve our egos. While consumption sometimes yields momentary fun or happiness, only rarely does it yield joy. This book contrarily asserts that to reclaim joy is to retrieve a practicable virtue of the Christian faith, express gratitude for God's gracious gifts, move us to worship, and empower us for active love of God and neighbor.

This book points to a Christian faith that is grounded in a consequential way of life, including substantive moral ethical virtues and a sacramental ontological vision in which all of life participates with God. It focuses on practices that enhance joy by pointing to the contingency of human life and our participation with God's redemption work for all creation. Hence, this book seeks to restore a focus on Christian faith and youth ministry that necessarily involves a certain way of life, a life well-lived in response to the Creator's good gifts and the in-breaking kingdom inaugurated by Jesus. At root, a Christian life is ordered by worship and practices that recognize, celebrate, and respond in joy in light of humanity's contingency and God's gratuitous liberation of all creation.

Join the movement and go make disciples in an ever-changing world.

We must conceive the future of the church from a missional perspective and take stock of our Wesleyan heritage. Only then can we reengage that heritage and fully participate in God's mission.

These essays are the fruit of a colloquy sponsored by the United Methodist General Board of Higher Education and Ministry and the Association of United Methodist Theological Schools, which convened at Boston School of Theology in November 2017.

John Wesley and the Protestant Reformation

Between Luther and Calvin

Juan Wesley y la reforma protestante

Entre Lutero y Calvino

JUSTO L. GONZÁLES

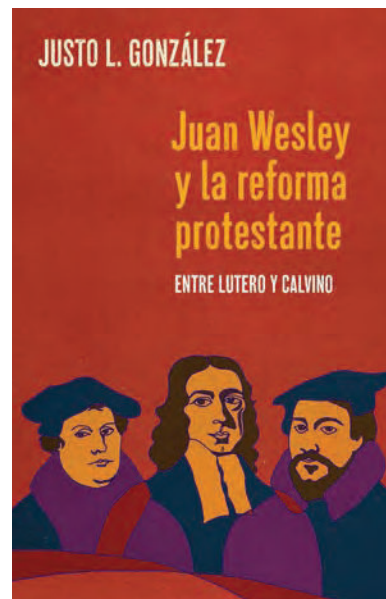

Bilingual Edition

To scripture, experience, reason, and tradition, we must add mission.

The purpose of this bilingual edition in Spanish and English is to connect John Wesley with the two main reformers, Luther and Calvin, exploring what he drew from each of them and what he rejected. González clarifies the nature and method of Wesley's theology, which Albert Outler famously christened the Quadrilateral, and he suggests that, while helpful, to be more descriptive of Wesley's intent and the spirit of the Reformation to scripture, reason, tradition, and experience, we must add mission.

Justo L. González, PhD, author of more than eighty books, has taught at the Evangelical Seminary of Puerto Rico, Candler School of Theology at Emory University, Columbia Theological Seminary, and the Interdenominational Theological Center. A leading voice in Hispanic theology, he founded the Asociación para la Educación Teológica Hispana and served as the first executive director of the Hispanic Theological Initiative.

Juan Wesley y la reforma protestante

Entre Lutero y Calvino

JUSTO L. GONZÁLES

El propósito de este libro es relacionar a Juan Wesley con los dos reformadores más importantes.

El propósito de esta edición es relacionar a Juan Wesley con los dos reformadores más importantes, Lutero y Calvino, para explorar lo que Wesley incorporó y rechazó de ellos en su teología. González analiza y explica la naturaleza y el método de la teología de Wesley, que Albert Outler llama el Cuadrilátero. Sugiere que, si esta manera de describir esta teología es bien útil, para tener una descripción más acertada de la intención de Wesley y del espíritu de la Reforma con respecto a la Escritura, cuyo análisis incluye la razón, la tradición y la experiencia, nosotros debe agregar la misión.

González, PhD, autor de más de ochenta libros, ha enseñado en el Seminario Evangélico de Puerto Rico, la Escuela de Teología Candler de la Universidad de Emory, el Seminario Teológico de Columbia y el Centro Teológico Interdenominacional. ## La evangelización y la misión de Dios

Una teología bíblica

PHILIP WINGEIER-RAYO

El evangelismo depende del mensaje bíblico central, la promesa del reino de Dios.

El libro reta tres grandes errores que la iglesia ha cometido durante el último medio siglo en su afán por hacer evangelismo y llevar a cabo la misión de Dios: la estrategia, sin visión amplia, del iglecrecimiento de usar textos sueltos de la Biblia y la imagen manchada de evangelismo por parte de televangelistas y predicadores de la llamada “teología de la prosperidad”.

La tesis de este libro enfoca en el Misio Dei y la promesa del reino de Dios como el centro del mensaje de toda la Escritura. El libro está dividido en 10 capítulos sobre tres partes: la evangelización y la misión de Dios en el Antiguo Testamento, el Nuevo Testamento y un repaso de la teología del reino de Dios de Karl Barth, Paul Tillich, Wolfhard Pannenberg, Leonardo Boff y Mortimer Arias. Después de repasar el Antiguo y Nuevo Testamentos y los teólogos modernos, el libro concluye con las pensamientos personales del autor y una teología holística de la evangelización y la misión de Dios para la iglesia en el siglo XXI.

Développement et Croissance du Méthodisme Uni en RD Congo

Origines, Défis, et Possibilités

M. FLUGENCE NYENGELE, PhD

Written in French, this book tells the story of United Methodism in the Democratic Republic of Congo.

Le méthodisme uni au Congo a un héritage riche dans l'engagement social motivé par l'évangile de vie et d'amour qui cherche à avancer le bien être des gens et promouvoir l'épanouissement humain et la vie en abondance. Les méthodistes mettent l'accent sur l'expérience de l'amour de Dieu et l'appel à grandir dans cet amour, à le pratiquer et à le transmettre. Ce livre explore les travaux de premiers missionnaires méthodistes au Congo, la contribution des premiers méthodistes autochtones congolais et leurs descendants dans l'annonce et la pratique de l'évangile holistique accompagnées par des travaux éducatifs, médicaux, agricoles et l'évangélisation.

Wesley's Foundry Books

Not long after the acquisition of the abandoned foundry, John Wesley's ministry transformed it into the cradle of Methodism in London. Wesley's Foundry Books is an imprint of the General Board of Higher Education and Ministry of The United Methodist Church. These academic books are clearly and accessibly written by Methodist/Wesleyan experts with an emphasis on church life and ministry. Representing the rich diversity of the church, Wesley's Foundry Books offers a disciplined and balanced approach for Course of Study students, clergy, and lay leadership.

New Room Books

The New Room is a historic building in Bristol, England, and the place of John Wesley's study. Built in 1739 by John Wesley, it is the world's oldest Methodist chapel. New Room Books is a reviewed academic monograph series that offers scholars from the Methodist/Wesleyan tradition a way to share the benefits of in-depth research. This imprint deepens and broadens the scope of scholarship for its own sake, in its diversity and contextual complexity. This imprint is committed to publishing faculty as they move toward tenure and scholars who want to share the fruits of their research.

Meet the Staff

Established in 2016 to promote the intellectual life of The United Methodist Church, the Publishing Office at the General Board of Higher Education and Ministry (GBHEM) creates scholarly books to support faculty research and career advancement; provides texts with a Wesleyan focus; and supports the book publishing needs of GBHEM offices, including the international E-Reader project. Being entrepreneurial in spirit while staying in touch with our constituents allows GBHEM Publishing to be agile, adaptive, responsive, and accountable to the needs of our global United Methodist Church.

Because we are part of a connectional United Methodist Church, Publishing is positioned to nurture leaders and change lives through engaging and advocating for the intellectual life and mission of The United Methodist Church. We actualize ministry excellence by ensuring that students have books that reflect Wesleyan theology and heritage. And we champion a culture of call by contextualizing Wesleyan/Methodist theology in new and exciting ways, such that UM leaders around the world communicate and connect their knowledge and vital piety to make disciples of Jesus Christ for the transformation of the world.

GBHEM Publishing is committed to collaboration as we strive to produce academic books that are relevant, accessible, and Wesleyan. Through publishing, GBHEM gives voice to and connects underrepresented and younger scholars by providing opportunities for their new ideas to be thoughtfully considered by the broader academic community.
